A special YP International Congress on the Preventive System and Human Rights was held in Rome, Italy on January 2-6, 2009. Participated by 300 representatives of 130 countries, participants advocated for the promotion of Human Rights especially of children and young people.

Don Bosco Children Fund was represented by the DBCF Director, Fr. Leo Ochoa. He said that the congress was more an exchange of experiences from 150 years of Salesian Family's involvement for the promotion and protection of those rights which jurists would define as rights of children and young people especially on the Salesian preferential option for the poor and vulnerable.

The Congress was an answer to the Rector Majors's dramatic challenge: "Rehabilitate YOUTHS, VICTIM of negative experiences".

Two words, Education and Development, always serve as key words in DBCF value education to the children. After class hours most children sacrifice their leisure time for games in order help the family. DBCF promotes that education is directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect to human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Education promotes understanding, tolerance and friendship. It maintains peace. In DBCF, in fact, the name for peace is "Education and Development". DBCF thanks all benefactors who supports us in helping children go to school and receive education. It is, in fact, in keeping with their dignity as human being.

Education promotes understanding, tolerance, and friendship. And above all, it maintains peace. In Don Bosco Children Fund, the new name for peace is "Education and Development".
